Judges for the Geopolitics of Energy 2011 Case Competition
1 April 2011

Meghan L. O’Sullivan is the Kirkpatrick Professor of the Practice of International Affairs at Harvard University’s Kennedy School and the Director of the Geopolitics of Energy Project there. Her expertise includes nation-building, counterinsurgency, the geopolitics of energy, decision making in foreign policy, Iraq, Afghanistan, and Pakistan. Between 2004 and 2007, she was special assistant to President George W. Bush and Deputy National Security Advisor for Iraq and Afghanistan during the last two years of this tenure. Prior to this, Dr. O’Sullivan was senior director for strategic planning and Southwest Asia in the NSC; political advisor to the Coalition Provisional Authority administrator and deputy director for governance in Baghdad; chief advisor to the presidential envoy to the Northern Ireland peace process; and a fellow at the Brookings Institution. Her publications include Shrewd Sanctions: Statecraft and State Sponsors of Terrorism (2003) and a co-edited volume, Honey and Vinegar: Incentives, Sanctions, and Foreign Policy (2000). She has been awarded the Defense Department's highest honor for civilians, the Distinguished Public Service Medal, and three times been awarded the State Department's Superior Honor Award. Dr. O'Sullivan is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Trilateral Commission, and the Aspen Strategy Group. She holds a DPhil in Politics and an MSc in Economics from Oxford University and a BA from Georgetown University.

Katherine Hardin, Senior Director, Russian and Caspian energy research, IHS Cambridge Energy Research Associates. Ms. Hardin has worked extensively in Russia and the Former Soviet Union (FSU) since 1990, and focuses on energy sector development in Russia, Central Asia, and the Caucasus. Her expertise includes the oil and gas industry in the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS) region, and she has authored CERA reports on oil and gas production and export routes from the Caspian region, regional gas pricing across the CIS, and the current wave of Asian investment in Central Asia, among other topics. Prior to joining CERA Ms. Hardin worked as an energy consultant with PricewaterhouseCoopers, advising on power sector privatization throughout the FSU with a focus on Central Asia and the Caucasus. Ms. Hardin is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and also a Fellow with the United States-Japan Foundation. She graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Wesleyan University, and holds an MA from Yale University and an MBA from the Yale School of Management.

David Kilcullen is the founding President and CEO of Caerus Associates LLC, a strategic design consultancy with a focus on the overlapping issues of conflict, climate change, energy, health and governance. Dr. Kilcullen serves as an advisor to NATO and a consultant to the U.S. and allied governments, international institutions, industry and NGOs, in conflict and post-conflict environments and the developing world. Dr. Kilcullen is also an Adjunct Professor at the School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University. Before joining private industry, Dr. Kilcullen had a distinguished career in the Australian and United States governments, including in the Australian Army, and with the U.S. State Department, first as Chief Strategist in the Office of the Coordinator for Counterterrorism, then as Special Adviser for Counterinsurgency to the Secretary of State. He served in the Iraq War as Senior Counterinsurgency Adviser to General David Petraeus during the successful 2007 “surge” and in Afghanistan as counterinsurgency adviser to the NATO International Security Assistance Force during 2009-2010. Dr. Kilcullen is the author of numerous scholarly articles and books, including The Accidental Guerrilla (2009), Counterinsurgency (2010) and Out of the Mountains (forthcoming in 2011), all from Oxford University Press.

Eric Rosenbach, (Judge in Absentia). Adjunct Lecturer in Public Policy, is Director of the National Security Project, Belfer Center for Science and International at the Harvard Kennedy School and Managing Director for National Security at the Markle Foundation. He previously served as a professional staff member on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and as the national security advisor for U.S. Senator Chuck Hagel. On the SSCI, Rosenbach provided oversight of the intelligence community’s counterterrorism efforts and authored two formal investigations of prewar intelligence on Iraq. As a captain in the U.S. Army, Rosenbach was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal for his leadership as a unit commander. The Director of Central Intelligence named his unit the top intelligence organization in the U.S. military for two consecutive years. Rosenbach has co-authored books on military leadership, intelligence and counterterrorism policy. Rosenbach was a Fulbright Scholar in Eastern Europe. He completed a JD at Georgetown, an MPP at the Harvard Kennedy School and a BA at Davidson College.

Emma Sky is currently a fellow at Harvard University’s Kennedy School of Government where she runs a study group on “post 9/11 interventions: national security or imperial hubris?” Emma is a British citizen who has worked at senior levels on behalf of the US and UK governments in Iraq, Afghanistan and Jerusalem, across the fields of development, defense, and diplomacy, and with many civilian and military agencies, including as Political Advisor to the Commanding General of US Forces Iraq (US General Odierno) in Baghdad, Sept 2008 – Sept 2010; Special Advisor on Reconciliation to the Commanding General of Multi-National Forces Iraq (US General Petraeus) in Baghdad, May/June 2008; Political Advisor to the US Security Co-ordinator for the Middle East Peace Process (US Lieutenant-General Kip Ward) in Jerusalem, 2005. Prior to 2003, Emma has over a decade of experience working in Bangladesh, Brazil, Egypt, Jordan, Morocco, Nepal, Nigeria, Pakistan, Palestinian Territories, and United Arab Emirates. She provided technical assistance on poverty elimination, human rights, justice public administration reform, security sector reform, and conflict resolution. Emma's formal education was at Oxford (UK), Alexandria (Egypt), Hebrew University of Jerusalem (Israel) and Liverpool (UK). Emma has traveled widely in Africa, Middle East, South Asia, and Europe. She speaks Arabic, Hebrew and French.